CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

The Week In Ottawa

CURRENT CONTRACTS

Behind the much discussed food trade talks between Canada and Britain, which had been marked by some "hard bargaining" and some strange stories of "deadlock", is a report on Parliament Hill that in various ways Canada has experienced difficulties in meeting her commitments for the current contract period. Indeed food shipments to Britain for current contract period included the following with the figures in brackets indicating the total purchased and the others the contract quantity: hams and bacon, 35,000,000 (250,000,000); pork offals 4,480,000 lbs. (2,066,090); hog casings, 330,000 (375,000); beef, 120,000,000 lbs. (36,187,775); beef offals 1,055,000 lbs. (93,597) Canadian canned meat lunch 25,000,000 lbs (48,000,000); mutton and lamb, 10,000,000 lbs. (2,051,073); ox tails, 300,000 lbs. (69,135); cheese 125,000,000 lbs. (57,084,000); evaporator milk, 600,000 cases, (600,000) roller dried skim milk powder 8,000,000 lbs. (5,000,000); eggs 83,000,000 doz. (56,693,000).

Some of the contracts or agreements expire December 31, 1947 and others March 31, 1948 or January 31, 1948, though these figures for shipments to date offer a fairly good idea of the amounts purchased so far as against contract quantities. REAL NEED

Judging from the check being given to applications for American dollars by Canadians seeking to go to U.S. for "health" reasons, the authorities in Ottawa where such applications must be passed on by officials or doctors of the Department of National Health and Welfare are extremely cautious in considering such applications even when these are certified by physicians. Each case is adjudged on its merits by a panel of doctors and "real need" must be proven before the U.S. currency is made available in order to return such travel this winter and to save U.S. dollars.

SNAP ELECTION

Speculation back stage in this capital seems to be inclined that an immediate general election in Canada would only come if something unexpected presently at the top level should occur and there is a tendency to discount many of the rumors now in circulation. It is pointed out that the government's mandate can hold until 1950 and that none of the current issues are likely to bring on such an appeal to the people, even though the rising cost of living controls etc are "hot". However, it is also stressed that the seriousness of the international situation may prevent any such general election coming in the immediate future. Nevertheless a snap election is not ruled out as a possibility in 1948 if something should suddenly warrant such action aside from current "hot" issues, with veteran observers hinting that the present ten vacancies may possibly be held in the senate in part at least for just such an eventuality since it is no longer a secret that several ministers of the cabinet would like to retire before the next general election.

EFFECT OF BANS

The effect of the bans on certain imports are bringing businessmen in large numbers to Ottawa where officials generally are courteous but firm in sticking to their decisions, though it must be admitted that changes have been found necessary to "ease" these regulations and other changes are almost sure to come soon. In this respect, there is much argumentation and gossip behind the scenes on the ban of fruits and vegetables since authorities point out that total imports of this kind in reality represent less than one percent of U.S. money involved and still the health of many Canadians may be affected, especially possibly deficiency troubles may be invited. Mutterings of discontent against these bans can be heard along Parliament Hill in ever increasing complaints.

DIVORCE AGAIN

Already the chronic problems of divorce procedure in Canada is being felt in the capital since an M. P. has indicated that he plans to introduce a resolution in the House of Commons to increase the grounds for divorce and to propose that all such matter be handed to the Provincial courts instead of being dealt with by Parliament. At present, only adultery is a basis for divorce and all provinces except Quebec have divorces heard in provincial courts. Each year residents from Quebec have to come to Ottawa for their divorces actions before the Senate Committee where evidence is heard and a private bill must pass both the Senate and Commons.

STUDY BY COMMITTEE

The Geneva Trade Agreements will be thoroughly examined by a committee of the Canadian Parliament when the legislature returns in the New Year and it is understood that this will mean the calling of government experts and others interested.

SMALL BALANCES

One reason, it is interpreted along Parliament Hill, for the difficulties between Canada and Great Britain in reaching agreement on food contracts is the fact that the balance sheet of the $1,250,000,000 loan obtained from Canada in 1946 was only $317,000,000.

KEEPING GRAIN AWAY

"Whatever the feeling might be" said in part Agriculture Minister Gardiner in the House of Commons, "the facts are these, that from the time the crop was harvested in Western Canada down to October 31, more food was delivered by the farmers to the elevators than was delivered in the same period of the preceding year. I state that in order to any suggestion made to divert that surplus in wheat and oats had anything what ever to do with keeping grain away from the elevators in Western Canada delivered grain in as great quantities as in the preceding year."

SAID IN THE CAPITAL

"But this country is in the happiest position of any country of the world," declared Gave, "leader in the Senate Wishart Robb, "these temporary things we have are only temporary in their nature."

"The people of Canada are already experiencing great difficulties as a result of the rising price controls and subsidies," emphasized Mrs. Leigh, of the Montreal Consumers Federation when a delegation representing 75 organizations interviewed Finance Minister Abbott here.

"If we take a course of action which is as unpalatable to you as it is to us, it is only on account of dire necessity," remarked Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British Food Mission, during a visit to this capital for negotiations.

"The better facilities you have, the better scientists you will attract," stated Dr. K.W. Neathy, Director of Science Service for the Department of Agriculture discussing proposals for reorganizing such service in Canada.

"Canada and the United States have a mutual interest in joint defence and our arrangements to work together towards that end are working out well," commented Defence Minister Claxton.

"The present intention of the Government is to ask for an extension of the powers which now exist to impose and maintain price controls for a further period," said Finance Minister Abbott during a 45 minute defence of the Government's action. WEEKLY WIND-UP

Members of Parliament are being flooded by representations asking that they do something about checking the rising prices, including requests from labor unions.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has total assets of about $8,000,000 now and a personnel of about 1,100 according to Dr. Augustin Prigon of the CBC.

During the past year it is estimated that Canada's World champion skater, Miss Barbara Ann Scott has helped to collect more than $100,000 for various charities.

An expert told an audience in this capital that Canadian development of new light alloys has enabled a double-walled insulated milk can to be made which will keep milk fresh hours longer in the event of delayed rural pick-up.

Merry Christmas

... The familiar Christmas Carols we sing every year, and never tire of. ... Silent Night... On, Come All Ye Faithful... The First Noel ... all the lovely songs rendered in church, at home, and wherever free people are gathered, these things are Christmas.

... The Child-like traditions which young and old enjoy ... the stockings at the fire-place ... the poem, "Twas the Night Before Christmas" ... Dickens' Christmas Carol ... the tree gleaming in the parlor ... the secrecy and expectancy of bright faces, these things are Christmas.

... The last-minute rush in everything we do ... rush to get more multicolored lights that glitter and reflect the beauty of the most beautiful of all seasons, these things are Christmas.

... The beautiful spirit of giving ... giving not only presents, or money to the poor ... but giving our love our willingness to help, our benevolence, our friendship to all, these things are Christmas.

HISTORY OF RAYMOND

By ELIZABETH KING

Mitch has already been said of Jesse Knight's vast possessions and accomplishments. Let us enjoy a glimpse into his early life as recorded in the book, "The Jesse Knight Family."

"Jesse Knight was born at Nauvoo, September 6, 1845, and died at Provo Utah, March 14, 1921, ending a life of devotion to his family, to his church and to the people throughout the west.

As a young boy, he knew nothing much but hardships such as herding cows barefooted, gathering pig-weeds and sago roots as a help toward the family's meager food supply. His clothing consisted of coarse homespun cloth, socks, and made over clothes of all kinds. When but eleven years of age he took oxen on shares and hauled winter wood, getting larger boys to help him load his wagon. In 1857 his mother and family moved to Provo, where he herded cows and gleaned potatoes. With his earnings he bought a colt, the first thing he ever owned which was the pride and joy of his young heart, but for short time only as he traded it for a cow which he gave to his mother. He had a keen desire to make life easier for his mother, as he saw her weave late into the night by light of a burning greased rag. He had little chance for schooling, but his mother taught him much while she worked. He was a pioneer both by nature and experience.

When fifteen, he went with ox team to take a load of oats to the Overland Mail Station in Egan Canyon near Ely, Nevada. The trip was hard and lonely. The wagon was so loaded there was no place for him to ride except to stand on the wagon tongue. He had to travel nights over the desert and was so weary and sleepy he dared not ride at night for fear of falling under the wagon wheels; so he walked, often dozing and waking himself by falling down.

At 16 Jesse Knight was employed by Ben Roberts at $30.00 per month. He did a man's work at logging and when he had worked there a few months he told Mr. Roberts he thought he could do a little better and was going to change. Mr. Roberts told him to continue at work and he would do right by him. At the end of six months he was paid $50.00 per month from the day he started. Father never forgot this encouragement from an employer to a struggling boy. He made many hazardous trips into Nevada and Montana when lynchings were common. He once sold a load of produce in Montana and was paid in gold dust and for fear of robbers on his lonely trip home he hid the gold in the hub of an old wagon wheel which he carried in the back of his wagon. He sometimes saw men who had been lynched hanging to trees at the side of the road in lonely far away places.

According to Church Chronology during the month of April and May 1862, there were 3,458 converts from Europe who arrived in New York and went to Florence, Nebraska, where thousands of Saints were camped, waiting an opportunity to go to "Salt Lake Valley". In order that these people might come to Utah, in May 1862, the Church sent 262 wagons, 293 men 2,280 oxen and 143,315 pounds of flour from Utah to assist the immigrants across the plains and mountains.

They travelled in six companies under Captain Horton D. Haight, Henry W. Miller, Homer Duncan, and Joseph Horne, John R. Murdock and Ansel P. Harmon.

Jesse Knight, then 17 years old went back with this company under the direction of Horton D. Haight as captain. This gave Jesse an opportunity to go over the road he had travelled thirteen years before with his widowed mother and her family.

There were 650 immigrants in this train which Jesse assisted in bringing to Utah. They arrived in Salt Lake City, Sunday Sept. 19, 1862, making the round trip from the valley to Florence and back in a little over four months. Thirty persons of this company died enroute and were buried on the plains.

At 22, Jesse Knight spent the summer guarding the new settlements in Sanpete from the Indians and participated in what was known as the Black Hawk War, hence was numbered among the veterans.

Jesse Knight related a circumstance of his courtship days while he was living at Provo, showing how he devised a wooden home-made, one-seat sleigh, in which he called to take his girl for a ride. When he arrived at her home she wished her aunt to accompany them. Though disappointed, he felt he could not refuse, so they crowded in. As the aunt was not of the slender type they had difficulty in squeezing into the narrow seat, but finally managed to get away and were soon gliding through the deep snow. When about a mile from home the sleigh struck a rough spot in the road, and completely collapsed spilling them all in the snow. As he was not able to repair the sleigh he was greatly embarrassed in having to allow his best girl and her aunt to walk home in the deep snow while he followed with the wrecked sleigh and team.

Father had always maintained that he had difficulty in getting the girls (continued on back page)

CAN'T SHOW...

THIS asset is the Bank of Montreal family . . . 8,970 men and women who are working with the million and a half Canadians who bank at the B of M.

No amount in dollars can ever express the value of this asset. Yet, of its nearly two billion in resources, no asset of the Bank of Montreal is so productive as these people who daily serve their customers — just as B of M people before them have served on every business day since November 3rd, 1817.

Behind this asset is the accumulated experience of 130 years. Through five generations, the experience of the original staff of seven has multiplied as the B of M family has grown in strength and numbers.

Each member of this family is a distinct personality . . . together, nearly nine thousand of them make the B of M.

"To the outstanding services of the men and women of our Staff, I would like once again to pay tribute," said B. C. Gardner in his general manager's report to B of M shareholders. Pointing out that the volume of counter transactions handled by the Staff during the past year had surpassed all previous records and that the Bank's deposit accounts now exceeded more than 1,600,000, Mr. Gardner described the measures being taken to speed services to customers and to lighten the heavy burden on the Staff.

"We are," he said, "continuing to carry out further mechanization in connection with routine transactions and are adopting new and revised working methods to expedite business."

"We have a group of routine organization officers who visit branches periodically and assist Managers and Staff in improving routine methods.

"As an additional aid to staff training, we have recently established a school at Head Office and we hope to extend this form of instruction . . .

"The organization and arrangements relating to the development, the progress and the welfare of our Staff are under continuous and careful study, and I know of no feature of our business that has been given more care and consideration over the past year.

"...to my immediate associates . . . and to the entire Staff I wish to express my sincere thanks for their loyalty and devotion and for their efforts in maintaining and improving the services which we render to our customers and to the community at large."

WILLIAM AND PAUL FAIRBANKS

to pay attention to him, he was backward and felt awkward in their presence. It was customary to take the girls horseback riding in his time with the girls riding back of the saddle on the same horse. His partner generally wished him to keep up with some of the other young men so that she might engage in conversation with them. Such circumstances of course were embarrassing to him. However he finally found a very fine young woman in the person of Amanda McEwan, who in spite of his awkwardness, appreciated his worth, and with whom he fell deeply in love. They soon became engaged and plans were made for their marriage in October, 1868, but in September he heard of the approach of the Union Pacific Railroad. He owned a yoke of oxen and a wagon and bought another team and a load of barley on credit and went to meet the railroad. He secured a job for himself and teams running a plow at $20.00 per day. After working several months the wedding was again set for January 1st. He started home for this date in due time, but was snow-bound in Provo canyon. His being unable to send word regarding his whereabouts made the occasion an anxious time for his bride to be, as well as himself. This again necessitated postponing the wedding, this time to January 18, 1869, when they were married in the Endowment house in Salt Lake City. On their return trip to Provo in their light spring wagon, one horse died before they reached their destination. It became necessary to borrow a horse to complete the journey. The young couple had a home of their own, which they moved into. Jesse had made adobe and helped to lay the bricks and finish two rooms. The home was located on 5th West, Provo, Utah. His wife had sewed rags and woven carpets to cover the floors. She had woven cloth for neighbors and with the proceeds had bought material and made quilts. Although under 18 years of age she was a real help-mate. She tailored the first suit her husband had after they were married.
